Cricket disaster

Team India could not become 'invincible champion'. The world champion of ODI cricket became Australia, which had won this title five times and knew very well the pressures and psychology of the final match. Team India has played many final matches, but in the last stages its hands and legs start getting tired, as a result, after winning the 'ICC Champions Trophy' in 2013, Team India has not been able to win any world title till date.

Of course, be it the 'World Test Championship' or the finals of T-20 matches, the result and destiny of Team India has become 'runner-up'. Of course, Team India had won 10 league matches and one semi-final match unilaterally and continuously in the World Cup of One Day Cricket, hence it was not wrong to believe that it was 'invincible'.

We defeated all the best teams in the world including Australia. This was no coincidence. We also received honors and awards for best batsman and 'Player of the Tournament' Virat Kohli (765 runs), best bowlers Mohammed Shami (24 wickets) and Bumrah (20 wickets) and best captain Rohit Sharma (597 runs), but There were some wrong calculations that we could not become 'world conquerors'. The world number one batsman is still Shubman Gill and the fourth and fifth positions are Virat Kohli and Rohit Sharma respectively. Siraj is still the world number 2 bowler. There is no batsman from Australia in the first five positions in the batsmen's category.

Team India has scored a total of 3160 runs in the World Cup. This is also the highest. These are not normal figures. Still, the question may be that in the final, where did the charisma of spin bowling of Ravindra Jadeja and Kuldeep Yadav, which was a terror and surprise throughout the tournament, disappear? The question is also natural on our slow batting, because after the fall of three wickets our batsmen scored only 72 runs in 20 overs? Not a single six was hit in 40 overs of the game. Only 43 runs could be scored after losing 5 wickets in the last 10 overs! Suryakumar Yadav could not prove his explosive batting. Interestingly, Bumrah and Shami had taken 3 wickets of Australia for 47 runs, but after that the century partnership of Travis Head (137 runs) and Labuschagne (58 not out) broke our dream. The hopes and truth of becoming an 'invincible champion' were also taken away. There has definitely been a shock, but this is not the time for despair. Our international cricketers themselves should review this and move forward.

Right now, Team India has to play a T-20 series with 'world champion' Australia on our own soil. After that we have to go to South Africa also. The 'Champions Trophy' competition in 2025 is no less than the World Cup. This is also not the time to pull the legs of our players. The 11 faces of Team India have shown excellence on the field and presented a bigger picture about India. Prime Minister Modi has rightly said that even today we are proud of our team. We are with the team even today and will remain so in future too. This is the context and concern of the spirit of the game. By and large, November 19 was not our day. This game has introduced the feeling that India is one nation as a whole.

Demand is increasing in the country amid falling inflation; Decline in wholesale and retail inflation is a big relief for the economy

While global inflation has increased these days due to the food crisis, the decline in wholesale and retail inflation here is a big relief for the economy. Certainly, the way the market is bright due to the continuous increase in demand in every corner of the country since Diwali, there are favorable signs that it will continue even further. Recently, the Confederation of All India Traders (CAIT) said that there was good activity in retail and local markets during the festivals across the country and a record turnover of Rs 3.75 lakh crore was done. The latest report of the Center for Monitoring Indian Economy (CMIE) has revealed that the cost of most of the raw materials has decreased. The demand for fast-moving consumer goods (FMCG) is also increasing in the country. Lower raw material costs have made it easier for local brands to produce and sell FMCG products at lower prices. Last October, the number of e-way bills reached a record level of 10.3 crores. Businessmen generate online e-way bill to send any goods in and out of the state. The increase in their numbers is an early indication of the trend of increasing demand and supply in the economy. It is noteworthy that due to sharp improvement in the markets, the total tax receipts of the government in the current financial year are likely to be much higher than the budget estimate. It is expected that the festive season surge in direct tax and goods and services tax (GST) collections will continue in the coming months. In fact, at present there are three main reasons for the increasing demand in the country. Softening of inflation, decline in unemployment figures and flow of more money to people through government schemes. Due to these reasons people have been motivated to spend more. Undoubtedly, wholesale and retail inflation indices present a scenario of relief. While these days global inflation has increased due to the global food crisis and the world markets are looking battered, despite these adversities, Indian markets are bright. Inflation based on Wholesale Price Index (WPI) remained minus 0.52 percent in October. This is the seventh consecutive month since April this year, when wholesale price index based inflation has remained below zero. Its being below zero means a decline in overall wholesale prices on an annual basis. Similarly, retail inflation based on Consumer Price Index declined to 4.87 percent in October. The market recovery has gained momentum due to increase in employment in both rural and urban areas in the country. According to the latest report published by the Reserve Bank of India, this year the unemployment rate has decreased in both rural and urban areas and the employment situation is looking good. According to the National Statistical Office (NSO), the unemployment rate in the country has come down from six percent to 3.2 percent in the last six years. MNREGA has played an important role in reducing the unemployment rate in rural areas, while skill development, digital skills and gig economy have played an important role in reducing the unemployment rate in cities. Global agencies are also predicting the growth of Indian markets. Rating agency Moody's Global Macro Outlook, 2024 report said India's markets and industries are headed by less restrictive trade policies, better infrastructure and stronger domestic demand compared to Bangladesh, Pakistan and Sri Lanka, and India's economy is growing rapidly. In such a situation, the country's growth rate for the years 2023-24 and 2024-25 is likely to be 6.7 and 6.1 percent respectively. To maintain the momentum in the country's markets in the coming times, we will have to control the inflation of food grains. Since the Kharif crop remains weak and Rabi sowing gets affected, there is a risk of further inflation increasing. In such a situation, a stable rupee, manageable energy costs and tax policy on fuel prices can help keep inflation in a stable range. Apart from this, the Reserve Bank will also have to pay attention to the withdrawal of additional cash. Also, focus will have to be given on ease of doing business and increase in employment opportunities.

Gaza in ruins, debris and darkness, difficult to even recognize

I have visited this area about a dozen times in the last three years. But now it is hardly recognizable. Houses are missing walls or roofs or both and many are stacked on top of each other like a pack of cards. When a group of international journalists arrived in an Israeli army jeep on the southern edge of Gaza City last Friday morning, we struggled to find our way amid the ruins, debris and darkness. We had left Israel less than an hour earlier as our jeep drove through an area devastated by 42 days of airstrikes and nearly three weeks of ground fighting, and it was difficult for us to know where we were. . The walls or roofs or both of the houses were missing. Many houses were stacked on top of each other like a deck of cards. I have visited this area about a dozen times in the last three years. But now it is barely recognizable. I realized that blocks of apartments had been ruined by shootings or attacks. The roads have become sandy and rough due to the movement of Israeli tanks and armored vehicles spread across the area. If anything is constant, it is the sea. According to Palestinians and many international observers, such widespread damage to residential and commercial areas is due to Israel's indiscriminate attacks on Gaza, which, according to Gaza officials, have killed approximately 12,000 people and damaged more than 40,000 homes. The commanders accompanying us called it the inevitable cost of fighting an urban war against the armed Palestinian group Hamas, which had holed up in civilians' homes. Lieutenant Colonel Tom Perets, the deputy commander of the brigade now controlling the area, said, 'We were fired upon from all sides. We had to answer that. He says that after the attack by Hamas on October 7 (in which, according to Israeli officials, 1,200 people were killed and 240 people were taken hostage), Israel has no option but to attack the area again. Was. Our journey began in Beri, an Israeli village that faced a brutal attack by Hamas and where its people have since been displaced across the country. The marks of bullets fired by Hamas fighters can still be seen in the houses. Before traveling by army vehicle, we had to agree to the conditions of not taking photos of the vehicle or any soldiers and to turn off our phones upon reaching Gaza, so that we could get a glimpse of life inside Gaza during the war. Otherwise reporting in this area is extremely difficult. Our convoy entered Gaza through the same broken part of the fence that Hamas fighters broke to enter Israel. Entering Gaza meant entering darkness. There is a shortage of fuel in most parts of this region. Gaza's power plants were forced to shut down after Israel cut off electricity and disrupted fuel imports. The houses that were left safe in all the villages were immersed in darkness. Drivers turned off the headlights of their vehicles for fear of being seen by fighters who attacked Israeli soldiers with grenades and anti-tank missiles. Only the light of the twinkling stars was left in the sky. Additionally, Israeli troops fired occasionally to illuminate the battlefield. The only signs of life along the road were Israeli infantrymen, guarding the route at strategic distances. More than one million people have fled their homes from the northern area of Gaza and the entire area has been evacuated. Some people left behind are at risk of not getting any help. "Not everyone can vacate the house, my mother is ill and can't walk, so I can't leave her alone," Ahmed Khalid, 39, who is staying in the northern area, told our colleague over phone. He told that sometimes the ambulance takes two days to reach here, and sometimes it does not come at all. If we need him at night, there is no way he will come. After reaching Gaza City, we left the open jeep and boarded an armored vehicle, indicating that there are still opponents of Israel there. After some time we reached Gaza's largest hospital, part of whose huge complex has been captured by Israel and is now filled with tents of people displaced by the war. Al-Shifa hospital was a key target of the Israeli attack, as the Israelis say it is located above an underground military complex used by Hamas. Israel wants to prove to journalists that the hospital is actually used as a military complex to give international legitimacy to its attack, but Hamas and the hospital leadership have rejected this. We followed Israeli special forces into the compound, making our way through bombed-out buildings and debris. Inside we found a squad of Israeli soldiers sleeping. At some distance, lights were shining from the hospital windows. The Israelis told us that this was proof that the hospital was doing its job even in our presence. But we were not allowed to talk to the hospital management on phone to know the situation of the hospital. The World Health Organization reported that Al-Shifa had stopped functioning as a hospital this week. hospital Trying to justify their presence in the hall, the soldiers took us to show us a tunnel made of stone and concrete in the field, from which a staircase was descending. He said this is evidence that Hamas has military bases beneath the hospital. The Israeli army did not descend due to fear of explosives. In the darkness it was not clear where and how deep the tunnel was. When we left from there, the puzzle of the tunnel was still not solved. Only the light of the twinkling stars was left in the sky. Additionally, Israeli troops fired occasionally to illuminate the battlefield. The only signs of life along the road were Israeli infantrymen, guarding the route at strategic distances. More than one million people have fled their homes from the northern area of Gaza and the entire area has been evacuated. Drink a glass of Cinnamon benefits gooseberry-beetroot health in many ways, juice daily and remain use it in food like this young even in old age.

Juice for Glowing Skin: Diet: With some exercise every day, we can control the effects of aging to a great extent. With increasing age, it is advisable to take light and liquid diet because it not only keeps the body but also the skin healthy. Juice made from beetroot and gooseberry is very beneficial for the skin. The first effect of increasing age is seen on the face. Along with wrinkles, facial beauty starts diminishing. Drink beetroot and gooseberry juice to control old age. With increasing age, problems like loss of facial glow, wrinkles, blemishes, looseness of skin etc start happening, which is common. It is difficult to stop it, but yes, slowing down this process is in our hands to a great extent. By including right lifestyle, diet and workout in your daily routine, the effects of aging can be easily controlled. The first thing you have to do for this is to drink the right amount of water. By drinking adequate amount of water, not only are many important organs of the body able to do their work properly, but the body remains hydrated, the effect of which is also visible on the face, so with increasing age, liquid foods should be included in the diet instead of solid foods. Include as many as possible. Apart from water, drink buttermilk, lassi, coconut water, fruit juice daily. Today we are going to tell you about one such juice, which can keep you beautiful and young. This is beetroot and gooseberry juice. Make beetroot-geoseberry juice like this - For this, peel and wash the beetroot. Also, gooseberry also has to be washed before cutting. - Cut both the things and put them in the mixer. - Add water, mint leaves, ginger, a little salt and grind it. - Now filter it and drink it. All the ingredients in it are rich in nutrients that keep the skin healthy. Amla-Benefits of Beetroot Juice- 1. Amla contains a good amount of Vitamin C. Which contributes to collagen production. Due to this, the elasticity of the skin remains intact and hence there is no problem of wrinkles. Along with this, it also works to repair damaged skin cells, which improves the complexion of the skin. 2. Both beetroot and amla also contain antioxidants, which protect the skin from damage caused by free radicals. Free radicals can cause premature aging and can also make the skin look dull. 3. Eating beetroot or drinking its juice removes impurities present in the body. Due to which not only health related problems but also skin related problems remain away. The spots and blemishes on the skin also get removed. 4. Drinking beetroot and gooseberry juice keeps the skin hydrated. Due to moisture in the skin, there is no problem of wrinkles. Also the skin gets natural glow.
